

THE FUNGUS

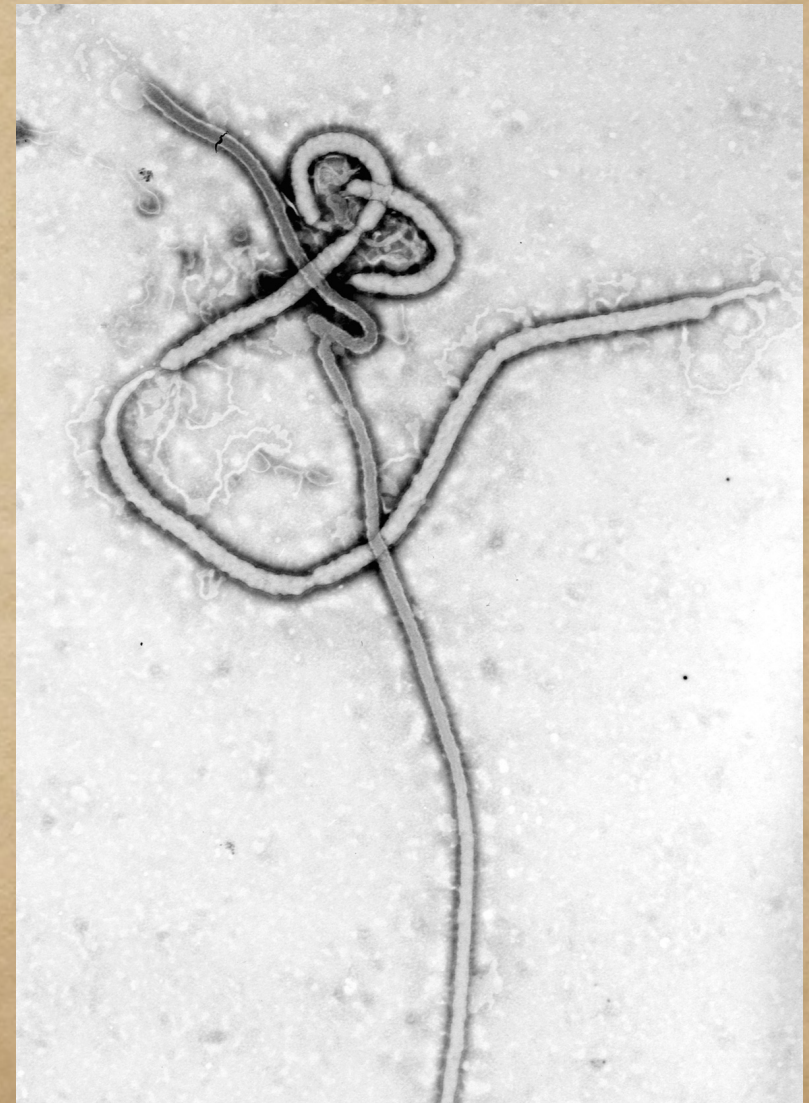

A distressing report has just come in from the Brewongle local residents. People have found large unknown orange fungus that is growing out of dead branches and trees. This fungus appears to be killing the local plants by cutting off the water supply from the trees roots. After killing the plant it slowly devours the plant from the inside.

Once it devours the plant it goes through the dead roots to release itself into the soil where it will infect other plants. This deadly fungus is being further looked into by the local residents and the police detectives. Many people suspect that it came into the country through the new shipping of wooden planks used to create the new church. The shippings came from west Africa.

When detectives went and did a DNA analysis they found it quite similar to the virus Ebola!

This is a sample of the DNA found in the fungus.

This means Ebola has actually changed its genetic structure to become a fungus. It also means that Ebola could be in many different countries all around the world with out any people even knowing about it. Hopefully it can not change its genetic structure to become a virus again. Read more about what the Scientists are doing on page 6

AMERICA
NUKES
NORTH KOREA!
Find out more on Page 7

Do you have way too much hair. Do you want to be bold. Well stop right there. We have the perfect product for you!

May or may not cause permanent brain damage

What the scientists are doing to stop the Ebola Fungus.

After the detectives gave the scientists a sample of the despicable fungus the scientists went to work. They tried everything from burning it up to 1000 thousand degrees Celsius, to licking it with a mouth full of melted chocolate but nothing worked. Except one day a much beloved rabbit was hopping on the self above the fungus

In an unexpected and unexplainable incident involving a TV, rock and some paper clips the rabbits stomach was cut open, the bench burning with blood, and the his liver fell right onto the fungus. The scientists were quite sad but to there surprise the fungus died to never be seen again. So the local police are currently dropping rabbit liver from there helicopter in the area of this fungus.

But even with these protocols there is still suspicion that this fungus, with its amazing travel speed is still around. So if you see a dotted, orange mushroom like thing report it to the local authorities so they can begin to drop rabbit liver.

The End!

WORLD WAR
3 AVERTED.
AMERICA
BOMBED
NORTH KOREA WITH COOKIES